

"Hidden Hand" COUNCIL ON FOREIGN RELATIONS

OPEN LETTER TO THE GOVERNORS AND LEGISLATURES OF THE SOVEREIGN STATES

Gentlemen:

You will have noted that the Three Resolutions adopted by the Council of State Governments in Chicago last December received a well-organized and tightly controlled "silent treatment" from the Nation's (Council on Foreign Relations) Press, until the movement began to get out of hand. Then Chief Justice Warren launched an attack on the whole plan and this attack was quickly followed by another from the Chief Executive (C.F.R.) and a suddenly aroused Press, —SIX MONTHS AFTER the action began.

It soon became apparent that "attack" was not going to work and within a few weeks (C.F.R.) Dwight D. Eisenhower launched a new campaign,—"If you can't lick them, join them." Get control of the movement and scuttle it that way. And the C.F.R. Press which reverses as smoothly as the Supreme Court, is now all out for a "debate." We would be for free and open, no-holds-barred debate too, if there was a public forum in the country really and equally open to both sides.

Of course the C.F.R. master-minds want the subject of debate limited to the very points they could hope to handle. Our idea is to cover the whole field of C.F.R. operation from the Federal Reserve, through the Conquest of Russia, World War One, the sell-out of China, Pearl Harbor, the C.F.R. World Revolutionary Agents in government who now ARE the Government, World War Two, the destruction of the British, French and Belgian Empires, the Central Intelligence Agency and its activities in baiting and then betraying the Hungarians and the Cubans (in the Bay of Pigs), the "communization" of the Dominican Republic,—U.N. and its Military Command—the Korean War, the O.A.S., NATO, the Common Market schemes, the World Court and the World Bank, Disarmament, and last and all-pervading, The Council on Foreign Relations.

It begins to look now as though for the first time in the fifty year history of the diabolical conspiracy to loot, plunder and destroy the United States, the people are going to find out what has been going on. The information has been available from the very beginning, to those few who knew where to find it. Recognized historians realizing that their days as historians were numbered, tried to spread the alarm. Patriotic men, especially military men UNABLE TO STOP TREASONOUS ACTIVITIES or to expose them either in official Washington or in the public Press, proceeded to write books revealing these crimes and exposing the perpetrators. But except in private files, these books never saw the light of day. No great Book Reviews for them; no multi-million dollar slush funds from the public treasuries to plant them in every public and school library in the world.

No big build-up for the Pentagon Case, Wedemeyer Reports, Major Jordan's Diaries. There is more than one way to burn a book. And this reminds us that there is one good (?) way to get a "President." The first of three incidents does not involve a book. The other two do.

When F.D.R. was first contacted about running for the Presidency he "backed and filled." He had so many financial obligations due to his long illness, etc., etc. Mr. John J. Raskob, who made the approach, inquired the amount of the obligations and F.D.R. estimated it would take about $300,000 to put him in the clear. Raskob said he would take it up with the "boys." In Depression Days $300,000 was considerable lettuce, but "the boys" agreed to pay off the creditors; there was nothing new about the deal except the amount. When they asked for the names of "the creditors" there was only one—"Mama."

Dwight Eisenhower— "No Party C.F.R." Eisenhower had to wait, because according to Harry Truman, "someone had to tell him what to do." Then the C.F.R. told Ike he was a Republican.

Many years later we encounter another "reluctant" candidate, Dwight D. Eisenhower. His principal trouble was that he did not know whether he was a Republican or a Democrat (he was No Party C.F.R.) and he had to wait until, to quote Harry S. Truman, he had "somebody to tell him what to do."

While he was waiting, the alleged "communist" agent, C.F.R. Joe Barnes was rounded up to ghost write a book—"Crusade in Europe." The propaganda press went into action and "just like that" Ike got a million dollars complete with tax fix. Then he decided he was a Republican candidate for the Presidency. As President he was the little man who wasn't there. BUT SOMEBODY RAN THE SHOW in Washington. Now it was all right for Ike to decide he was a Republican candidate. But the White House was occupied by a man from Pendergast Land,—he could see what was going on right under his nose. Harry was nobody's fool. And C.F.R. wanted Harry out of Washington. Harry had served less than two terms, hence was eligible to run again. And Harry just could NOT make up his mind about running again.

The record speaketh not of Harry ever mentioning a book,—but along came "The Man from Independence," ghost-writer unknown, and Harry got best part of a million WITHOUT TAX-FIX—for the "loophole" was closed after Ike got his'n. And Harry speedily decided he did not want another term no-how. Isn't it a pity we have no grandpas to tell these fireside anecdotes to the future leaders of whatever it is we leave them?

Getting back to books,—the detailed and documented facts set forth in "From Major Jordan's Diaries" should be known to every man in public office.

The Major tells of his leaving his business to go into the Armed Services—in his forties, and a veteran of World War One. He became Lend Lease Expediter for Russian supplies at Great Falls, Montana, where a gigantic air base was in operation. He relates how the Russians were shipping through Great Falls, plane loads of black patent-leather cases of government documents, plane loads of uranium, heavy water and all and everything that was necessary for the Russians to develop the atomic bomb. When he protested to his superiors in Montana, he was ignored. When he held up the shipments, the Russians in command would call the White House and Harry Hopkins would order him to send the stuff through. At the time he had never heard of uranium or heavy water but the manner in which the strange materials were being handled and the thousands of bundles of documents shipped without proper clearance, worried him. At one point during this period when Major Jordan was not pushing the contraband through, the Russian, Col. Kotikov, wrote Washington recommending promotion for Jordan in order that he might have more authority to get things moving. That is when Jordan became Major. And then the Major began to make entries in his Diaries.

Now remember,—no Soviet Union "communists" infiltrated Great Falls. What was going through Great Falls went with the knowledge and consent of the "White House," State, Treasury and War Departments, all of which were heavily staffed by members of C.F.R. (Ref: "The Hidden Hand" by Mary M. Davison, page 14).

On Page 11, Major Jordan points out the enormity of the TREASON involved in GIVING RUSSIA the atom bomb,—everything necessary to produce it,—shipping it out of this country UNDER COVER OF A WORLD WAR, and, when the bomb was finally exploded in 1949, arresting a handful of crummy little ALLEGED "communist" spies, including the (executed) Rosenbergs.

Gentlemen, just read this one page of Major Jordan's report and ask yourself WHAT the ROSENBERG "CELL" could possibly have provided Russia that she had not already been given by the highest ranking public officials in Washington:

"At this time I knew nothing whatever about the atomic bomb. The words "uranium" and "Manhattan Engineering District" were unknown to me. But I became aware that certain folders were being held to one side on Colonel Kotikov's desk for the accumulation of a very special chemical plant. In fact, this chemical plant was referred to by Colonel Kotikov as a "bomb powder" factory. By referring to my diary, and checking the items I now know went into an atomic energy plant, I am able to show the following records starting with the year 1942, while I was still at Newark. These materials, which are necessary for the creation of an atomic pile, moved to Russia in 1942:

"GRAPHITE: natural, flake, lump or chip, costing American taxpayers $812,437. Over thirteen million dollars' worth of ALUMINUM TUBES (used in the atomic pile to "cook" or transmute the uranium into plutonium), the exact amount being $13,041,152. We sent 834,989 pounds of CADMIUM METAL for rods to control the intensity of an atomic pile; the cost was $781,472. The really secret material, THORIUM, finally showed up and started going through immediately. The amount during 1942 was 13,440 pounds at a cost of $22,848."

"On Jan. 30, 1943 we shipped an additional 11,912 pounds of thorium nitrate to Russia from Philadelphia on the S. S. John C. Fremont. It is significant that there were no shipments in 1944 and 1945, due undoubtedly to General Groves's vigilance. Regarding thorium the Smyth Report says: "The only natural elements which exhibit this property of emitting alpha or beta particles are (with a few minor exceptions) those of very high atomic numbers and mass numbers, such as uranium, thorium, radium, and actinium. i. e., those known to have the most complicated nuclear structures."

"It was about this time that the Russians were very anxious to secure more Diesel marine engines which cost about $17,500 each. They had received around 25 on previous shipments and were moving heaven
